

Generated Report :

- Red cell count :

The red cell count in this sample of blood is $30.0 \times 10^{12}/l$. This means that there are 30.0×10^{12} red blood cells in every liter of blood. Red blood cells are an important component of blood, as they are responsible for carrying oxygen to all of the cells in the body.